Industrial Accidents

AS CANADA HAS EXPANDED INDUSTRIALLY there has been growing concern over the danger of industrial accidents and in almost every plant or factory today there are safety engineers, whose duty it is to make workers safety-conscious and to cut down in every way possible, the number of accidents. Last year, there were 30,414 claims registered with the Workmen's Compensation Boards in Canada, and there were 1,011 deaths resulting from industrial accidents. It is estimated that 1,500 workers are absent each day because of injuries received while at work. While industrial accidents are mainly associated with factories and large construction projects, the widespread use of agricultural machinery has given rise to a growing number of accidents on farms.

Workers Must Be Educated

In 1948 there were 1,350 fatal industrial accidents in Canada and of these 94 were listed as having happened on farms. This was seven per cent. of the total number of industrial accidents in that year. Carelessness and disregard of safety rules are said to be the cause of a great many industrial accidents. Familiarity with a machine or with a tool often leads the worker to become careless in using it, and the need for education of workers in these matters is considered great by those interested in promoting safety in industry. Recently the National Safety Council of the United States issued a list of safety practices recommended to reduce the number of accidents on farms.

Is Important On The Farm

Farmers were advised to keep machines in good repair, to exercise caution when handling kerosene and gasoline and to observe safety rules when driving farm machines or motor vehicles. Farmers were also advised to observe caution with ladders and with firearms. The advisability of knowing first aid and of having first aid kits available for treating injuries was also stressed. In farming as in other industries accidents result in loss of time from work and sometimes in damage to machinery and other equipment, in addition to personal discomfort and expense. Safety-consciousness and intelligent interest in removing the causes of accidents whenever possible, has become an important matter in modern industry and it is as important on the farm as in the factory or on great construction projects.

FOOD FOR TEN-YEAR-OLD BOY COSTS PLENTY

SPRINGFIELD, Colo. — Herman James Mason is doing all right for a lad of 10 years. He weighs 267 pounds.

He is 50 inches around the waist and wears a size 12 shoe and a size 18 shirt. Herman's usual breakfast consists of six eggs, two quarts of milk and a pound of bacon. The other meals are proportionately large, and his food bill for a week comes to about $50. His father is a hardware store clerk.

Law Is Strict When It Comes To Signatures

SYDNEY, Australia. — An ex-serviceman's last wish to leave all his possessions, valued at more than $100, to a lifelong woman friend was nullified here when he died in the act of signing the will.

A justice of the peace and other witnesses were present when the man began to sign the document, but collapsed and died after writing his christian names.

As he had no relatives and no dependents, he is officially assumed to have died intestate. Proceedings of the sale of his real and personal property will be transferred to general revenue.

A. A. House, Deputy Public Trustee, explained that a will is not valid unless signed by witnesses in the presence of the executor. Even if the executor lost consciousness while witnesses were signing, the will would not be valid.

One Accomplishment That Is Neglected

About this time every summer employers discover that graduates of universities and high schools cannot spell according to the Windsor Star. They fail to put together correctly the letters forming even simple words of two syllables. When they attempt to go beyond that, they are lost. Why spelling is not taught more diligently in the schools is a mystery. It is an essential in business, yet so many young men and women have to learn to spell, after they begin their business careers. They either are not taught or do not learn in the classrooms.

NEW REQUEST AT SWIMMING POOL

Here's a dessert that will be a favorite with the family! Giant, luscious blueberries and creamy vanilla pudding make a delicious ending to any meal. For special occasions, top it with whipped cream and shredded coconut, and you'll have a pie with a future!

BLUEBERRY CREAM PIE

Two cups vanilla pudding, 1 baked 9-inch pie shell, 2 cups blueberries, ¼ cup water, ¼ cup sugar, dash of cinnamon, dash of salt, 2½ tsp. cornstarch, 1 tsp. lemon juice, ¼ cup cream, whipped and sweetened, ¾ cup shredded coconut. Make your favorite pudding recipe, cool slightly and pour into pie shell. Cool. Meanwhile, combine blueberries and water in a saucepan, bring to a boil. Mix together sugar, cinnamon, salt, and cornstarch. Add to berries and continue cooking until mixture is clear and thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add lemon juice. Spread at once over top of cooled pie. Chill. Just before serving, spread with whipped cream and sprinkle with shredded coconut. In these days of high food costs try to use as many berries as possible. They provide good eating throughout the summer months, and their incomparable flavor will linger with us in preserves, jams and jellies until the berry-picking season comes again.

The husband arrived home one evening and gave his wife an insurance policy.

"How thoughtful of you," beamed his wife. "Now you won't have to see a doctor every time you feel ill, will you?"

"I don't like to criticize," said the English visitor, "but I do think our way of answering the telephone is better than yours."

"Oh? What do you say that's so much better?"

English Visitor: "Well, instead of saying 'Hello,' we say 'Are you there?' Then, of course, if you're not there, there's no use going on with the conversation."

"Jack isn't going to marry Sally, after all."

"But I thought he fell in love at first sight."

"Young man," said the old man severely, "when I was your age I, too, thought I knew all. Now I have reached the conclusion that I know very little."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed the lad in astonishment. "Has it taken you this long to find that out? Why, I knew it the minute I saw you!"

"Am I really the first girl you've really kissed, John?"

"Yes, darling, though naturally, I've rehearsed with others."

Canada Now Planning To Import Butter

OTTAWA — Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced that the government will try to prevent a possible shortage next winter by importing 10,000,000 pounds of butter.

He told a press conference that purchases will be made by the newly-established agricultural products board. In addition, the board has been given the power to import another 10,000,000 pounds if production falls below current estimates.

Meanwhile, the border will be closed to all imports of butter by private trade, with the new board becoming the sole importer until further notice.

To those private traders who already have taken steps to import butter, permits will be issued to enable them to complete transactions undertaken before Aug. 1.

In addition to these steps, Mr. Gardiner said the new board also has been given authority to buy a small amount of first-grade Canadian creamery butter over the government support price of 58 cents a pound wholesale. Butter prices currently are ranging at between 42 and 64 cents a pound wholesale, basis delivery Montreal.

The minister said that up to the moment, no butter has been offered to his department at the support price of 58 cents.

He made no definite statement on where the imported butter will come from, but indicated that he hoped to get some from New Zealand, Australia and possibly the Netherlands.

Reviewing the butter situation, he said the facts of the current situation are that production, storage stocks and consumption are all lower than the average of recent years.

Searching For Right Type Of Sunflower Seed

WINNIPEG. — Mario Astorga of Santiago, Chile, research director for the Chilean department of agriculture, is beginning a three-month stay at Altona, Man., in the hope of finding a hybrid variety of sunflower seed that will grow successfully in all parts of Chile.

During his stay at Altona, where Canada's only sunflower oil industry is situated, he will confer with Dr. Eric Putt, chief agronomist of vegetable oils for the federal government. Between them they hope to improve the situation in Chile.

Oil Sands In Alberta To Be Studied

EDMONTON — Nearly 100 representatives of the world's leading oil companies are expected to attend Alberta's symposium on northern oil sands in September.

The northern Alberta sands represent one of the world's largest reserves of oil.

As yet untapped, the sands have been experimented on for years by scientists seeking an economical method of separating the intimate mixture of sand and oil.

The Alberta government has invited some of the world's biggest oil companies to attend the symposium, which will give technical details of all phases of oil sands development.

The delegates will be down to Bitumont in northeastern Alberta to inspect the workings of the Alberta government's pilot plant there.

Great Britain is reported to be one of the firms interested in constructing a multi-million-dollar plant to extract oil from the sands.

Industries Minister J. L. Robinson said international interest in the oil sands "is increasing."

Korean Children Enjoy Party Given By Press Correspondents

(By Bill Boss, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

SEOUL, Korea. — For many were called but few had been chosen. A thousand disappointed children melted into the blackness of the night, the faintest clamor for admission they had waged for two hours transformed into a wail of disappointment. They had been invited to a party. There had been one, too. They had seen it—from the outside.

Peering through the windows of the big dining room they had seen the tables, set for 90 guests. Hungry they had watched the room empty and fill again twice, and the white-jacketed waiters bring on the meal.

Hosts were the war correspondents in Seoul. A European reporter had passed the hat: $125, a fortune in this country. It was decided to entertain 250 youngsters to a meal. Prizes and souvenirs would be distributed afterwards.

The first snag was in getting food. The United States Eighth Army in Korea turned down their request to buy supplies.

But the British N.A.A.F.I. (Navy, Army and Air Force Institutes) threw open its stores. Fresh bread was obtained unofficially from the correspondents' own mess steward.

It could have been an excellent party for 250—which it was.

But many, many more undernourished kids, feasting on the sight of good things apparently in store beyond the windows, had inevitably to be disappointed.

The invitation was by word of mouth throughout the neighborhood: "Children's party at the correspondents' billet at eight o'clock. They want 250 children."

By eight o'clock 500 were jammed at the gateway. A scant 150 were peeled off and formed up in the courtyard—ranging from tiny barefoot three-year-olds to 15-year-old boys and girls with little brothers and sisters on their backs.

The waiters had them served in pairs. A big plate of ham, sweet potatoes, buttered peas and a slice of breadlike cake. As much leed coed and fruit squashed as they could drink, and cake for dessert.

By the time the first sitting was over the crowd at the gate had grown to more than 1,000.

The second lot filed in as the first clutching bags of candies, went out around cutting up the ham into little pieces for them.

"You can't tell me these kids aren't hungry," commented one as the youngster whose food he was chopping up wolfed it down as quickly as it slipped off his knife.

Flash bulbs flashed as photographers snapped shots of "Korean children going to a party." Broadcasters trotted out their microphones and tape records and said what a wonderful time the kids were having.

The waiting youngsters formed up for a final assault on the door, the front arranged around in a semicircle.

The pause gave the reinforced guards the moment they needed to reassert control.

Slowly the pressure was reversed, a roar of anticipation became a giant wail of disappointment. As imperceptible almost as the invasion's advance had been, it went into retreat. Soon the mass was back outside the gates.

There the gigantic cluster waited, raising childish shouts for attention. Finally the last 70 were peeled off the rim closest the entrance.

Some of the prizes were taken out into the street in consolation and, used as bait, were not distributed by the bearers until they had spread out through the surrounding area.

The noise was dying in the distance as inside the study hall a little four-year-old got a round of applause and a prize (a pad of writing paper) for the song she sang from a table-top, a microphone close by.

$10,000 Grant To University For Research

A grant of $10,000 has been made to the University of Saskatchewan by the Rockefeller Foundation of New York, university officials announced.

The grant has been made to assist Dr. Wendell McLeod, dean-elect of the medical school to make a study of medical education and research in the coming year.

Dr. McLeod will travel extensively and visit many medical schools to observe educational methods and recent advances.

Dr. McLeod was appointed recently to succeed Dean W. S. Lindsay as head of the medical college, the appointment to take effect July 1, 1952.

During the coming year he will be associated with the present medical school staff in planning a full four-year medical course to be introduced in Saskatchewan with the completion of the university hospital.

Not Necessary For Irrigation Farmer To Change Methods

OUTLOOK, Sask. — An Alberta irrigation man said he disagrees with "experts and theorists" who say an irrigation farmer has to grow specialized crops and can farm only about a quarter section of land.

Carl Anderson of Brooks, general manager of southern Alberta's eastern irrigation district, said farmers did not grow specialized crops in his district. There was nothing to stop a man from farming a quarter, half or even a full section of land as long as he knew where he was going and had the equipment and labor available to do it.

Mr. Anderson was answering questions from Saskatchewan dryland farmers who demanded that the federal government stop immediately on the proposed South Saskatchewan river irrigation dam here. It was the opening gun of a campaign sponsored by the Saskatchewan Farmers Development association.

Farmers Shifting To Coarse Grains

OTTAWA. — Canada's prairie farmers are shifting their production this year from wheat and summerfallow to coarse grains and flaxseed, the bureau of statistics reported.

In a preliminary estimate of areas sown to field crops, it estimated that the 1951 spring wheat acreage has dropped to 24,629,000 acres from 26,082,200 last year while summerfallow has declined to 20,312,000 from 20,998,000.

On the other hand, acreages sown to oats and barley were up.

Awards Made In Newspaper Competition

Instillation of the president-elect, Stirling King, of the Estevan Mercury, and the presentation of trophies to the winners of the "Better Newspaper Competition," highlighted closing session of the annual convention of the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers association at Saskatoon.

A unique event took place when Andrew King, a past president of the association, installed his son, Stirling, as the new president. In doing so he presented him with the same gavel which he himself had donated to the organization 20 years before. In accepting his new post, Mr. King said that he would do his best to give at least partial credit to that office. "I will try to follow in the footsteps of a great many good men," he said, his successor George Lancaster of the Melfort Journal.

Syd Stevens, Shaunavon Standard, was named vice-president; Walter Ashfield, Grenfell Sun, was re-elected secretary-manager; Peter Blener, Tisdale Recorder; Ken Mayhew, Yorkton Enterprise; and Walter Telfer, of the Humboldt Journal, were appointed to the executive for the coming year.

At the dinner, sponsored by the local branch of the Imperial Oil company, the winners in the newspaper competition were announced. The grain and milling award for the best all-round newspaper with circulation under 500 went to the Milestone Mail. The Touchwood Times was second and the Liberty Press third in the same class. The grain and milling award for the best newspaper with a circulation of between 500 and 2,000 was won by the Grenfell Sun. The Shaunavon Standard was second and the Humboldt Journal and Indian Head News were tied for third.

The Tinted Works third in the best all-round newspaper with a circulation of over 2,000, went to the Swift Current Sun, with the Yorkton Enterprise and Estevan Mercury second and third respectively.

The Yorkton Enterprise captured the Dominion Textile award for the best editorial page. The Swift Current Sun was second, and the Estevan Mercury was third in this class. Norman MacLean of the Elmwood Herald, judged the under 500, and 500 to 2,000 classes in the competition, while Ken Walls of the Barrie Examiner, and Bill Cranston of the Midland Free Press, judged the over 2,000 class as well as the competition for the best editorial page. All four judges operate award-winning newspapers, their papers having captured awards in provincial and national-wide competition.

Walter Ashfield, secretary, told the gathering that this year's attendance had topped last year's by 10, totalling 160 delegates. This year's convention had been the most successful ever held, he said.

Man Operates Floating Store On West Coast

VANCOUVER. — Mr. and Mrs. Bill Graham are doing a flourishing business with their floating departmental store, plying between isolated communities along the British Columbia coast.

Three years ago Bill bought a rotting schooner hull that had been abandoned, half full of water, on the beach. With the aid of his father he repaired the vessel and built a plywood and cedar superstructure.

Beginning his second year aboard, he set out this summer with his wife and three children for a two-months cruise northward with a $10,000 stock of goods.

Different store departments are scattered along much of the cruiser's 70-foot length. Long lines of tartan shirts hang from a metal frame. There are racks of men's blue denim, work socks, nylon shirts, boys' and girls' shoes and lingerie.

There are also candies, watches, alarm clocks, costume jewelry and many other items including soft drinks. The latter are especially popular in Indian settlements.

They'll see old friends like Chief Henry Speck on Turnout Island, Old Hanson at Lagoon logging camp up by Minstrel and all the gang at Alert Bay.

GRAIN SHIPMENTS HIT RECORD AT VANCOUVER PORT

VANCOUVER. — Shipments of grain from the port of Vancouver during the crop year ending July 31 were at a post-war peak.

H. H. Smith, manager of the Canadian wheat board, reported more than 65,440,000 bushels of wheat left here for world markets during the year. In addition, 3,000,000 bushels of barley moved from here.

Wheat shipments for the 1946-50 crop year totalled 51,000,000 bushels. United Kingdom, India, Japan and South Africa were the best grain customers.

The first watches were made in Nuremberg, Germany, in 1747.

Newsy Items From Neighbor Papers

From Vermilion Standard—

The Hon. Gordon Taylor, minister of highways, made the pleasing announcement to Vermilion Board of Trade on Wednesday that a second large construction outfit would shortly commence work on the stretch of highway from Kitsco to Stony Creek scheduled for hard-surfacing this summer.

Bylaw amendment. Bylaw regarding conduct of children under 14 years of age is amended to read that "No child under the age of 14 years be found in any public place or in any street or lane unless gainfully employed and with his parents consent after the hour of 9:30 o'clock on any evening of the week unless accompanied by parent or guardian.

From Holden Herald—

When asked their opinion of the average wheat yield for their divisions, the councillors gave the following estimates: Moon, 28 bu.; Anderson, 25 bu.; Swabey, 20 bu.; Olson, 20 bu.; Semchysen, 18 bu.; Rozmahel, 18 bu., making an average over the municipality of 18 bushels.

From Innisfail Province—

Monday was a busy day at the site of Innisfail arena when a work gang operating on the bee system poured the concrete for the thirteen piers along the north side of the building. The work was done under the direction of construction sup't. Bill Peters and Son and it is planned to hold another bee next week to pour the concrete for the piers at the other side of the building. There were approximately 15 yards of concrete involved in the pouring for the piers and it took 145 sacks of cement to do the job. There were over 30 men on hand for the job which made it convenient for those not used to such heavy labor to take a few minutes rest without holding up the operation. Business firms donated the labor of employees for the day.

From Wainwright Star—

On previous occasions this column has complained bitterly about the increasing numbers of traffic violations occurring on our streets and highways and has pointed out the dangers of allowing such practices to continue. This summer things have become even worse with the boom conditions previously in the town and it has become almost as much as one's life is worth to venture into the streets and highways.

The LETTER BOX

605—McLeod Building,
Edmonton, Alberta,
August 3, 1951.

Editor, The Viking News,
Viking, Alberta.

Dear Sir: It would be appreciated if it as the Provincial President of the Canadian Legion in Alberta, could, through your columns, give my opinion of the conditions existing at present in respect to Basic Pensions and War Veterans Allowance.

At the last two Dominion Conventions of the Canadian Legion, held in Saskatoon in 1948, and in Winnipeg, 1950, resolutions were passed urging the Dominion Government to take action to remedy the deplorable position in which small pensioners and recipients of the War Veterans Allowance find themselves today, but it is regrettable to state that the Government up to this time has failed to amend the respective acts.

It is quite true that, at the session of Parliament just concluded, a vote of two million dollars as an unemployment supplement was passed, but as this affects only a small number of those that require aid it has not solved the main problem.

The cost-of-living index is now 187, but the recipients of pensions and of War Veterans Allowance are still on the same basic rate without any increase in either pensions or allowances.

A single man who is in receipt of War Veterans Allowance receives a basic rate of $40.43. A married man receives a basic rate of $70.83. If he is industrially unemployed he may apply for an additional allowance of ten dollars per month. On this allowance he is expected to pay rent, light, heat and fuel, to clothe himself and his wife and out of the remainder buy groceries sufficient to keep body and soul together. This Sir, is a financial and economical impossibility. These people are not living but merely existing, existing in a country as wealthy as Canada, and existing in a country that they served to the best of their ability when the country was in dire need of their help.

It should not be hard to imagine that the Government's disregard of the plight of the small pensioner and the recipient of WVA is, to some extent, the reason for the reluctance of men to enlist in the armed forces.

I do not hesitate to say that the re-habilitation program of the Go-

Pricing Themselves Out of a Job

(Camrose Canadian)

A few years ago nearly every little town or western community was able to stage its own stampede. This sort of entertainment appealed to the western temperament and everybody was having a barrel of fun. Then something happened. The performers organized themselves into a union with fees and restrictions so high that only the ultra professionals could afford to compete. Then came the demand for specialized competing livestock. Certain ranchers set up the business of breeding wild cattle. The result has been that most of the smaller stampedes are being written off as bad financial risks. There are two or three key points left, but the Calgary Stampede seems to be the only big show able to meet the higher costs and make it pay. It seemed a pitiful gesture when the big name riders held a warm-up in Edmonton just before the Calgary Stampede. Surely they could smell something burning.

S. Hafso Re-elected Legion Zone Commander

(From The Viking News)

At a meeting held in the Legion Hall, Viking, last Thursday evening, Selmer Hafso was re-elected by acclamation Zone Commander for Zone 2 of north-eastern Alberta. Present at the meeting were Mr. W. L. Knaut, barrister of Camrose, R. Jones, district commander, Camrose, A. Barker of Kinsella, H. Karr, postmaster at Wainwright and district postal inspector for eastern Alberta.

verment set out at the conclusion of the last war has proven to be the best in the entire world and ex-servicemen appreciate this to the fullest extent. However nothing can justify the lack of Government action in respect to the class of people who are now suffering and for whom no steps have been taken to keep their living conditions on a level of what they were even in 1945.

I have written this letter to again bring to the attention of your readers the plight in which many servicemen find themselves today, with the hope that individuals and organized groups of people throughout the country will take an interest in this matter and bring it to the attention of their elected representatives.

Yours truly,
George E. Gleaves, Pres.,
Provincial Command.

What Has Happened To Sport?

Reading reports in the daily papers and some magazines of the scandals in almost all classes of sport, professional and otherwise, one wonders what it is happening to sport. Cases of bribing players to throw games in hockey, boxing, basketball and horse racing have been aired and given prominence in news reports and articles. Over 90 cadets at the West Point Military academy in the U.S. have been discharged for cheating in exams. Forty-five of these were members of the famous army football squad. Jockeys in Ontario have been ruled off the turf for life on account of fixing races for the benefit of gamblers and race-trouts. Top notch college basketball players have been banned for life from active competition for throwing games in favor of gambling combines. Only a few years ago a prominent hockey player on a Toronto team was ousted for consorting with gamblers. Old timers will recall the infamous Chicago White Sox baseball scandal when almost a whole team was banned from professional baseball by throwing games to their rival Cleveland team in a world series. This should have been a warning to all others in competitive sport. It is indeed a sad ending to sell out for a few dollars your friends, your relatives, your team and the fans in general who support sport whatever it might be.

One redeeming feature is that the authorities are certainly bearing down on these nefarious practices. But of course there are weak-minded participants in most any sport that can't stand the temptation of what they think is easy money but not the consequences.
